*Sexual abuse is a grievous social ill that has affected generations upon generations of children and vulnerable adults from all social and racial demographics. This kind of abuse has ravaged homes and communities creating a society full of those that have endured this injustice and are forever changed by its impact.

I speak for a faith community that has suffered greatly from the effects of this intolerable crime, and I speak as an adult survivor of this kind of abuse. It is my life's work to see a positive impact made in the lives of survivors, and I feel it is so pertinent to implement measures of prevention in our communities and to equip parents and families to keep themselves and their homes safe spaces.

Creating A Safe Environment (CASE) training has proven a valuable tool in helping the Diocese of Rochester create and maintain safe spaces in our churches since 2004. Since its adoption as a mandated certification for all adults in the Roman Catholic Diocese of Rochester volunteering with children, youth, or vulnerable adults, the number of abuse reports filed has seen a sharp decline. Through local trainers, countless people have learned how to support safety and how to recognize and properly report abuse.

CASE training is now being made available to the public via this live training event. As a parent of four children and resident mom on the block voted most likely to have all the neighborhood kids at her house, I recognize the value in the education I have received through this program and feel it worthy information to share with the wider community.
